

CLERICAL WORK TO BE COMPLETE

House Provides Fifteen Days
Extra for Clerk and Assistant.

Deputies that were well deserved were handed out last night to Clerk of the House Ed Woodward and Assistant Clerk Luther Evans, when the House unanimously adopted a resolution authorizing the clerk and his assistant to complete the clerical work of the House in fifteen days, the former at $12 a day and the latter at $8. The resolution was offered by Watkins. In seconding it Rice said:

"Mr. Speaker, this House has never had a clerk that has done his work so faithfully and well, and the same should be said of the assistant clerk. The thanks of this House are due to them."

As a matter of fact, Woodward and Evans have made a record in the clerical end of the House machinery. Woodward's minutes are models of their kind and the thanks not only of the House, but of the press representatives as well, is due Woodward and Evans for their good work.

LOBBY AGAINST RESOLUTION DOWNED

Moanau signed neither. The majority report by Castle favored the resolution, with an amendment providing for a new disposition of the revenues from the lands, as follows: Fifty per cent for schools, forty per cent for promotion of homecoming, and ten per cent for the College of Hawaii.

Struggle in Afternoon.
This report was adopted in the afternoon after a hard struggle and a vote that at first was heart-breaking close. At the afternoon session Kellinoh, who has acted throughout as spokesman for the lobby, tried to secure the passage of an amendment to the resolution, calling for a special election on the question, to be held on August 29 next. The first vote was taken on a motion to table Kellinoh's amendment, and was lost, fourteen voting for the motion and sixteen against, as follows:

Ayes—Archer, Castle, Cockett, Connelley, Hale, Huddy, Kamanoulu, Kaneohe, Kawewehi, Mahoe, Makela, Sheldon, Waiholo, Speaker Holstein. Total, 14.

Noes—Affonso, Cooke, Correa, Fernandez, Kawanaka, Kellinoh, Long, Marcellino, Moanau, Rice, Rickard, Tavares, Towse, Watkins, Williamson, Yates. Total, 16.

Next Vote a Tie.
The next vote was closer still. It came on a motion that Kellinoh's amendment be adopted. Rickard, who had voted against tabling the amendment, did not really favor a plebiscite and on the next vote changed sides, with the result that the vote was a tie—15 to 15—and the amendment lost.

The lobby received its first setback here, and it was apparent that it did not have strength to kill the measure absolutely. A long debate ensued, Affonso speaking against the resolution. It was nearly 4 o'clock when the House finally got down to a vote on the measure itself, the motion being to adopt the majority report of the committee, which carried the resolution as amended.

When the final fight came over the adoption of the amended resolution, the vote was decisive. Long switched sides, the first to break away from the Kellinoh strength, and after this several others tumbled into the wagon swiftly and the resolution passed by a vote of twenty to ten. Correa, Fernandez, Long, Towse and Watkins—all of Oahu—joined with the friends of the resolution. Towse first voted against the resolution, and then before the result was announced changed his vote. He explained last night that this was done so he could move a reconsideration.

Fight Hotter in Evening.

The fight in the afternoon was hot, but it was hotter still in the evening, when the lobby made its sudden strike for a reconsideration. Most of the session's business had been cleaned up and a recess taken. All during the evening the lobbyists and Kellinoh's men were trying to round up the doubtful ones and get a majority against the Fairchild measure. Finally they thought they had succeeded. Part of it was engineered in this way: The Oahu delegation has been for weeks trying to get through House Bill 219, which practically does away with the mayor's veto power. It is backed by the Republican members of the Oahu Board of Supervisors, and the Oahu delegation made a strong fight for it. This measure was still pending last night, having been held up by a conference committee of the House and Senate. Affonso, of the House conference committee, is credited with being responsible for holding the bill up. Affonso is also one of the strongest opponents of the Fairchild resolution.

Was It a Bluff?

Last night the word was passed out to several Oahu men by opponents of the Fairchild resolution that a deal had been made whereby House Bill 219 would be reported out of the conference committee and passed by the House, and in exchange some of the Oahu men would oppose the Fairchild resolution. Whether or not this deal was actually made is doubtful, but word of it was passed around, probably as a bluff. With this as a lever as well as promises, threats and other means of persuasion, the opponents of the Fairchild resolution went back to the House ready for a reconsideration. They reckoned, however, without Charles Rice of Kauai. Rice has consistently opposed the Fairchild resolution, and voted against it in the afternoon, but when, after the House had once passed it, the Kellinoh faction called it up for reconsideration, he balked.

Rice Turns Loose.

Towse moved the reconsideration, and then Rice turned loose. "I have been against this resolution all through, Mr. Speaker," he said. "But it passed the House this afternoon, and to bring it up now will injure the Republican party and make fools of ourselves. Do we want to go down as the House that didn't know its own mind? Do we want to go on record with this kind of thing? If we do, we disgrace the Republican party, and I claim if we go back on our action of this afternoon we are disgracing ourselves. In five minutes we can change the good record this House has made."

By this time the doubtful members began to realize that they had nearly been led into an embarrassing position. When the vote was finally taken, it showed the following:

Lobby Loss.

On Rice's motion to table the motion to reconsider, the vote was:

Ayes—Archer, Castle, Cockett, Connelley, Correa, Hale, Huddy, Kamanoulu, Kaneohe, Kawewehi, Mahoe, Makela, Sheldon, Waiholo, Speaker Holstein. Total, 17.

Noes—Affonso, Cooke, Kamanoulu, Kawanaka, Kellinoh, Marcellino, Moanau, Tavares, Watkins, Williamson, Yates. Total, 12.

Absent—Fernandez.
This ended the fight, routed the lobby again, and also created considerable bitterness, much of which would have been erased on the last night of the session.

SIXTH HOUSE IS RECORD BREAKER

Most Economical as Well as Efficient Session In Territorial History.

The House last night ended the most economical as well as efficient session of its career. The sixth session will go down on the record as a distinct credit to the Republican party, which had a majority of twenty-eight out of the thirty members. Chairman Norman Watkins of the Accounts Committee presented a report at last night's closing session which shows that although the salaries of members and the force of employees is greater than ever before, the actual operating expenses have been cut to a minimum, which means a big saving to tax-payers.

The House thereupon passed a vote of thanks to the efficient Accounts Committee, which under the leadership of Watkins has made a record.

Another record was made in the legislation. Two hundred and seventy-two bills were introduced in the House, and of these 159 were passed, about fifty-nine per cent, which is an unprecedented number. One hundred and thirty resolutions were introduced and forty-four petitions. Thirteen messages from the Governor were received. Thirty-one concurrent resolutions were introduced.

The House received eighty-one Senate bills, and of these, all but fifteen were passed. Only two important measures that came from the Senate were killed in the House. One was the bill prohibiting government officials from being interested in public contracts to which the Territory is a party. The other is the Senate bill for the re-location of Union street, which raised such strenuous objections from the affected property-owners that the House could not pass it.

The House was active up to the end of the session, which came at 10:45 last night. A number of unimportant matters were tabled on oral reports from standing committees. After all the work had been cleared away, Kawewehi presented a resolution of appreciation for the work of Speaker Holstein, which went through with a whoop. Holstein has made an excellent Speaker, and his business-like method of handling parliamentary points has made possible the great amount of work done by the House.

After the House adjourned sine die, the Oahu members were hosts at an informal buffet luncheon in the University Club, where all of the members of the House, employees and representatives of the press were given a welcome farewell party, with Representative Williamson in the role of master of ceremonies.

RECREATIONS HONOLULU AMUSEMENT COMPANY'S NEW ACTS

Tonight's changes of acts at the theatres of the Honolulu Amusement Company, include many new and unusual acts, and each theatre will present a new series of moving pictures.

SAVOY

The latest stage sensation will be presented tonight at the Savoy by the Anker Sisters, who will give a duelling scene in which they will show their experience with the foils. They handle them with unusual skill. This is one of their strongest acts. They also have new songs. Hilda Carle will sing selections from Richard Carle's success opera, the "Jumping Jupiter," and others from Lulu Glaser's musical success. By request she will also sing "Keep On Loving." The Savoy has one of the strongest of the program changes.

PARK

At the Park, Beno will give a comedy juggling act, in which he will balance anything from a cigarette paper to a cartwheel, and will also handle a ploughshare. This will be an extraordinary light and heavy weight balancing act, but all done in comedy. The Four Weldons, a troupe of contortionists and acrobats, will give an unusually fine act. All are graceful and supple contortionists. The new films have been well selected.

EMPIRE

The new sketch artists, who hail from Australia, are to put on a new sketch tonight entitled "The Cake Walk Craze." Lovell has a splendid singing voice and this is one of the strongest attractions at the Empire. His rich voice is drawing crowds to the popular playhouse. He is also a fine pianist. Foley and Earle, the clog dancers, have a foot tapping act for tonight and the rest of the week, which far surpasses their previous efforts. The bill is unusually strong and is augmented by new moving pictures.

BIJOU

The Younger Brothers, the two strong men, one of whom is pronounced by army and navy surgeons as physically perfect, will change to "The Living Marble Models," and will do Greek and Roman posing. This will show off their wonderful physical proportions to the best advantage. Their strong man act is wonderful. The Russell Sisters will have new Grecian poses with additional electrical effects. Nellie will appear in a new globe rolling act and a Spanish dance. New pictures.

INDEPENDENT THEATER.

Tomorrow night, in front of the Independent Theater on Hotel street, near Nuuanu, will be exhibited the $850 Ford runabout automobile which is the first prize in the voting contest now being conducted by the latest theatrical enterprise above named.

Interest grows in this competition as it gets older. It has been started but a few days and the momentum already acquired promises great popularity.

The Independent is now putting on a longer and better program and is changing its films twice a week. The photo plays are of the best and are selected with a view to pleasing, instructing, entertaining and delighting all who attend. They are clear, flickerless and absorbingly attractive. Vaudeville and illustrated songs are put on between the moving pictures. The theater is cool, comfortable, pleasant and situated on the "Great White Way," along which Honolulu's pleasure-loving throng nightly promenades.

Manager Werner has received and will have installed by Monday next the latest and best moving picture machine, known as the "animascope," which gives an exhibition without waits between pictures, where one picture dissolves into another that succeeds it. A dissolving machine for illustrated songs will soon be installed, now on the way.
